

Photo 9: Broom taller and denser, but not more extensive. Large heather plants.

Photo 10: Eastern corner of hill. Spread of broom, but matrix of sparse grassland, moss and bare ground survives.

Photo 11: Eastern corner of hill. Extent of broom remains similar; increased vigour of heather.

Photo 12: Looking south-east towards childrens' nursery. Much increased vigour of heather, some spread of scrub on right hand side of picture.

Photo 13: Looking south across slope above childrens' nursery. Increased vigour of heather, but trees and scrub along gully in centre of picture much taller.

Photo 14: Looking west towards River Avon. Good growth of heather and goldenrod, but some spread of bramble and broom in centre of picture.

Photo 15: Slope to north of nursery. Close-up of scrub growth on previously open area.

Photo 16: Looking south from slope above nursery. Increased growth of trees in small gully.